Zoning certificates (also referred to as zoning permits) are required for new businesses, most signs, home occupations, fences, detached sheds and garages, new single-family houses, pools, and residential alterations among other uses. To obtain a zoning certificate, follow these steps and remember that the Community Development staff is there to help you along the way.

1. Please fill out this application form. The same application form is used for all projects
2. Provide a site-plan, which is a drawing showing the location of the structure or property layout.
 - a. Provide other renderings or materials that may be required. Examples of other renderings or materials may be determined to be necessary include a written narrative describing the proposed use or business, a drawing showing what the improvement will look like and building height, a lighting photometric plan, a landscape plan, a floor plan, and surveys.
 - b. Some zoning certificate applications (such as for a new single-family home) will require a professionally surveyed site-plan. Other zoning certificates require just a simple site plan showing the location of the proposed improvement drawn onto an aerial photo. This is common for simple improvements such as for sheds, decks, and fences.
 - c. Some more tips on creating a useful site plan: An accurate site-plan will show the location of the proposed improvement and its distance from the property lines (setbacks). An aerial photo can serve as a good base map for a site plan. To access property aerials, check out the Clermont Auditor's website. Once at the auditor's website, type in your address number and street name, select your parcel when it comes up, and then select "Tax Map" which will give you an aerial shot of your property.
3. Submit the completed application and drawings to the Community Development office with the required fee.

2. Zoning districts. How do I check the zoning of my property?

A: Miami Township has an automated "zone checker" program. Just add your address number and then select your street from the drop-down menu. For certain newly created lots or lots with two different zoning districts, you will receive a message to check with the Community Development Department for help. Here's the zone checker link: MiamiTwpOH.gov/zoning
